

One of the Business process I had observed in the National University is the accounting process. As I log in my Nuis and check the transaction history, I can clearly see the amount I paid and the amount I have yet needed to pay. The accounting data is constructed in a form wherein it is really easy to understand. For example in a case wherein I paid more than what's needed to be paid, I will get a clear output of the excess payment I made and will be used to deduct the next enrollment transaction. As a user, It will be a good impression for these data to be easily understandable.
